"The South 40"
by JAMES A. SMITH
COUNTY AGENT

Foods are in a tremendous change situation. Today, we buy more and more of our foods processed. This is proven by the astonishing growth of the retail food business from 40 billion dollars in 1948 to over 86 billion dollars last year.

Many food scientists are under pressure to find new foods for expanding population. As agriculture reaches predictable limits, new "created" or manufactured foods must be found. Within the next few decades, the customary deficiency of 10-15 percent between what is grown by world agriculture and what is actually needed, will widen.

One of the exotic developments is protein spun from soybeans. By adding flavoring and coloring, the white protein fiber is changed to look and taste like ham, chicken, beef, sausage or turkey. Those who have tried these new meat substitutes tell me that it's very difficult to distinguish between the actual and the manufactured product. Cost of the meat substitutes are about the same or a little more than the "real McCoy", at present time. However, it's expected that with increased production cost will be lowered.

At what age should a beef heifer calve? Many answers can be had to this one, depending on who you are talking with. Carter Martin told me the other day that he had his heifers bred to calve at 24-25 months of age. We think this is about right. But this calls for good management. Heifers must weigh 500-600 pounds at weaning and wintered well. Heifers carried through the winter at a maintenance level will not be ready to breed in March. They should have about 5 lbs. of grain plus supplement each day and good quality hay and or silage.

Beef cows that calve from January through March will return more dollars. This becomes very important when we consider that on the average, it costs $160. to carry a beef cow for one year. That is, considering all costs.

Before getting too far into the winter feeding, livestock owners should have their forage tested to determine the feeding value. It has been demonstrated over and over that we can't tell the value of forage by looking at it. This service has been available to farmers for three years. No cost, yet very few farmers in Appomattox county have used it. Knowing the value of the forage is the only way of determining how much grain to use.

Research in burley tobacco shows that the quality of the cured leaf is drastically lowered when nitrogen rates are in excess of 100 lbs. per acre. However, yield increases can be expected when nitrogen is applied up to 300 lbs. per acre. The work also pointed out that high rates of manure may also adversely affect the quality — primarily because of its chlorine content.

A number of farmers purchase fertilizer early to take advantage of discounts. This is good business. Fertilization plans should begin with a reliable soil test. Remember, a soil test only reflects what the sample shows. A sample that does not represent the field to be fertilized is worth little and is not considered a reliable sample. If a representative sample is not taken, one might as well forget it and continue to guess what the oil needs. Good samples save money and make money, whereas a poor sample may cost. Now is the time to bring in the samples to avoid the rush in early spring.

Hogs are one of the few things that look real good for next year. Slaughter is up over 1963. Fewer sows are being kept nationally. Swine can be added to many farms in this county profitably. They work well on small farms. Profitable hog production results from good management. Remember! A hog's usefulness is determined by its ability to produce large litters, to economically convert grain and supplement to pork, and to produce pork acceptable to the consumer.

Audio-Visuals For JobSeekers

An audio-visual method of informing claimants of unemployment insurance benefits regarding their rights and responsibilities under the Virginia Unemployment Compensation was introduced in this area today by the Virginia Employement Commission.

All persons seeking future jobless benefits through the local office of the VEC will be required to view a film which explains, pictorially and orally, the major provisions of eligibility, ineligibility, and penalty for fraud under the law. These presentations, termed by the VEC as "Benefit Rights Interviews," are gradually being introced in all areas of the state.

Board Approves Egg Referendum

RICHMOND— Virginia's State Board of Agriculture has given its unanimous approval to holding an Egg Referendum on March 15.

The referendum will give Virginia commercial egg producers an opportunity to vote on whether to assess themselves two cents per hen, when the hens are sold, to finance research, education and promotion of Virginia produced eggs.

Board approval followed a hearing at which seven representatives of the state's egg industry presented a petition for the referendum. The petition was accompanied by signed opinion poll forms from producers with a total of more than one million layers, asking for the referendum

The referendum is authorized under the Poultry Products Promotion Act, passed by the 1964 session of the Virginia General Assembly.

Balloting will be by mail. All commercial egg producers who kept 400 or more hens in 1964 are eligible to vote, provided they fill in an official certification form and mail it to the Virginia Department of Agriculture prior to Feb. 13.

Certification forms are available from all county agricultural agents offices, from the Virginia Department of Agriculture and in forthcoming issues of The Magazines.

The referendum has been endorsed by the Virginia Farm Bureau Federation, the Agricultural Conference Board of Virginia, the Virginia Egg Council, the Virginia Egg Marketers Assn. and the Virginia State Poultry Federation.

GI's Eligible For Re-opening Their Insurance

More than a million and a half veterans may not know that they are eligible for the reopening of GI insurance, William J. Powers, manager of the Roanoke Veterans Administration Regional Office, said today.

They are those whose disabilities, although adjudged to be service-connected, are so slight that they do not rate monthly compensation payments.

The fact, however, that their disabilities are service-connected makes them eligible to apply for National Service Life Insurance, Powers pointed out.

The VA has no way to trace these individuals to nofity them of their eligibility. Veterans receiving compensation checks, on the other hand, can be notified through the mails.

The majority of these veterans and a half million others may be completely unaware that there was a reopening of the agency of origination.

Powers said that about 1,000,000 World War II or Korean veterans have been service-connected for the entire category.

The VA is also particular, however, that service applicants set forth in each instance they may elsewhere have had the opportunity to secure insurance coverage either failed to apply for or allowed it to lapse, in part, since February 1, 1951.

These veterans are entitled to the same rates which would have been available to them at the time of separation from service and a total of 36 months from the date of such separation to apply for reinstatement of their insurance.

Powers said that

Sales Co-op Reports

Year's Sales Reduce Dark Leaf Pool Holdings To Record Low

Unsold holdings of Virginia dark tobacco from all previous crops held in storage by the Dark Tobacco Sales Cooperative on October 31, 1964 were the smallest on record at 3,440,976 pounds.

In his recent report to the Cooperative, Manager E. P. Lancaster said his agency sold 435 hogsheads, or 583,329 pounds, dry weight, during the past 12 months.

These sales were valued at $389,243, Lancaster reported.

The annual report of the Cooperative, which is the governing - related agency charged with selling the government pool holdings, shows that varying amounts of leaf remain unsold going back through the 1956 crop.

Half A Crop

The 3,440,976 pounds on hand represents 2,579 hogsheads of processed tobacco. This is equivalent to about 4,300,000 pounds of farm weight tobacco, or just under half of the normal production for one year.

This is considered a fairly strong position for Type 21 dark tobacco grown only in Virginia and may serve as a stimulus to a strong auction market this year. Buyers have now only limited amounts to draw from in stored government stocks.

By crop years, the hogsheads in storage held by the cooperative range from the highest 692, or 932,480 net pounds, for the 1958 crop to the smallest, 75 hogs heads or 99, 781 pounds, for the 1960 crop.

The Cooperative's holdings have dwindled favorably each year. The report shows that the supply on hand has been cut from 6,067,888 pounds dry weight, on hand at October 31, 1960 to the present 3,440,976 pounds.

1963 Addition

From last year's crop, the agency received 417,106 pounds of farm, weight tobacco from dark - fired market warehouse floors, or 6.27 per cent of the 6,643,186-pound 1963 crop. That added 301 hogsheads, or 380,407 dry weight pounds to total cooperative stocks held by the Cooperative.

Lancaster, who was reelected manager and secretary - treasurer during the Cooperative's annual meeting, says of the current market outlook on the eve of auctioning of the 1964 dark leaf crop:

"We expect a good market. This will be due in part to increased use of Virginia dark tobacco abroad, and in part because of the shortage in the quality of their orders from the poor, drought-reduced 1963 crop."

T. B. Hall, Sr., was reelected president of the cooperative. C. D. Broddus, of Sparta, Caroline county, was named vice president. The cooperative year runs from November 1 to October 31.

I know I've been a good boy. My leg is hurting this morning, but I would like you to know I want a knife, a gun, and a cannon. Maybe, a wagon, too. I had my tonsils out a little while ago, so don't bother with a horn.

Gentle Rain Drops

by Mrs. Annie E. Fore
Pamplin, Va.

Little rain drops gently falling,
Falling here and there.
To water the parched earth reminds us of God's love and care.

So much like thy gentle spirit,
That softens our hardened hearts,
Filling our withered souls, and joy and gladness to us imparts
Just see the earth needs rain, and the bright sunshine
So we need thee, fill with thy spirit this heart of mine.

Day by day we need thee Lord,
to give us wisom and power
Just as the dry earth needs the gentle refreshing shower
Today my thirsty soul cries out to thee my Saviour and Lord
Quicken me, and refresh with thy sword, "thy holy word."
May thy spirit be poured out in these latter days
To moldest perishing souls, and guide us in our ways.

-3-

The former rain was moderate, today we need a down-pour
The former and the latter rain, our languishing souls to restore,
Give us hungry hearts dear Lord so we may ever be,
Hungering and thirsting for right eousness and thee,
And with the downpour give us all vision clear
Especially that we may see that thy great day is near

-4-

Like the rain gently falling, may we witness here and there
Giving to others daily the message of truth, is my daily prayer.
May we hasten for time is short, and fast running out—
And give the message a certain sound, as with a loud shout
And, as good soldiers march right on without halts, or stops.
Oh, could we as Jesus said, shout it from the housetops
Send us Lord thy showers, and stir our sinful hearts anew—
To give with power the mighty message as found in Joel Chapter two.

Rebels Lose Close One

Amherst scored 34 points in the second and third quarters here Tuesday night to down Appomattox, 60-54 in a Group II, District IV high school basketball game.

Roger Roberts paced the winners with 18 points while Sambo Brooks had 10. Larry Guill, of Appomattox, took game honors with 23 points, while teammate Wilford Rogers had 10.

Appomattox took a 17-13 first period lead, saw the lead vanish in the second quarter and the rally in the final stanza fall short.

Local HD Ladies To Be Hostesses

Home Demonstration Club members are planning to set as hostesses during the Centennial year at Appomattox National Historical Park. Taking note of the 100th commemoration of the end of the War Between the States, the Home Demonstration yearbooks for 1965 carry the seal of Appomattox County on the cover. The yearbooks, being distributed this month, are a gift from Fidelity National, Appomattox Branch (formerly Bank of Appomattox) and were printed in the TIMES print shop.

Wallflower Or Follower Of Gang ?

The Appomattox Junior Tri-Hi-Y met Nov. 19, 1964. The vice-presidents introduced the speaker, Mr. Alderman. Mr. Alderman gave a very enriching talk on, "Wallflower or Follower of the Gang." He said he neither one. Do what you think is right. The meeting was then turned into business. We discussed sending flowers to the home of Mr. C. T. Moses, Jr. This was voted and carried out. The secretary read the minutes and the important business was on. We elected a Historian and committee to keep a scrapbook for the club. They are Audrey Inge; chairman; Louise Wheeler, and Margaret Moore.

Carolinas-Virginia Power Pool Announced By VEPCO President

The Carolinas - Virginias Power Pool, a major regional power development, became a reality today, according to A. H. McDowell, Jr., president of Virginia Electric and Power Company. Four of the South's largest electric power companies signed an agreement calling for expenditures of $4.4 billion for new generating and transmission facilities in a four-state pool by 1981.

Virginia Electric and Power Company, Carolina Power & Light Company, Duke Power Company and South Carolina Electric & Gas Company form the pool which paves the way for an expansion program to meet the growing power needs of 2,300,000 electric customers now served by the four companies in a 100,000- square - mile area of Virginia, West Virginia and the Carolinas.

The agreement extends through July 1, 1981, and will be reviewed for renewal on a ten-year basis beyond that date. It calls for construction of 44,000,000 kilowatts of new electric generating capacity — about five times the pool's existing capacity — and more than 3,100 miles of new high - voltage transmission lines, of which more than 1,600 miles will be at 500,000 volts.

Nearly a thousand people died in Virginia traffic last year. At the same time, the Committee urges all of us to drive with courtesy, caution and common sense and not to cause or be a traffic casualty this year.

Martin Calls 4-H Convention 'Trip Of A Lifetime'

The 35-member Virginia delegation attending the 43rd annual National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago since Nov. 27, arrived home late Saturday night after being stranded in the "Windy City" an extra day because of a blizzard grounded aircraft.

Being cooped up all day in the hotel, Jack Tyree, state 4-H Club agent suggested that all members brave the snow and hard wind and go to a nearby restaurants and have a good meal. All were in favor and felt much better after eating.

Arriving back at the hotel, they had another surprise awaiting them. They were invited to join other stranded state delegations at a party and dance in the Beverly Room of the Conrad Hilton Hotel where the 4-Hers were staying.

The Hawaiian delegation was among those present and persons from the Old Dominion learned some new dance steps.

With four being the average number of national honors per state, the Virginians brought back more than their share of national honors announced during the congress sessions. They came back with nine national and nine alternate national honors. Nearly all the national winners received $500 college scholarships.

James Martin, Appomattox County, won double honors. He was named a sectional winner in the forestry project and was also named an alternate national winner on the project.

On the return trip home, members of the Virginia delegation were asked what had impressed them most at the congress. Here are some of their answers:

Jimmy Martin, of Appomattox said: The congress was one of the most inspirational and educational weeks I will have during my life. Each meal with its fine entertainment was the greatest. Our sponsors treated us like kings and queens."

Jimmy said he was going home and challenge all club members to work harder so as to be able to take the "trip of a lifetime."
